

Hyder Construction of Denver recently announced the promotion of Matt Huelskamp to Business Development Manager. Matt began his career working in project management, and started working for Hyder in 2007. Matt is actively involved in marketing, public relations, strategic planning and business development activities in the commercial construction industry. Matt received a Bachelor of Science degree from the University of Denver's Real Estate and Construction Management Program.

Hyder Construction is a value-added provider of preconstruction and construction services for clients in the Front Range, Denver and Colorado mountain communities. Hyder has over 63 years of experience with technical and logistical construction projects including both the private and public sectors.

