

Hyder Begins Construction on Riverwalk Amphitheater in Breckenridge

October 31, 2007

Hyder Construction Inc. announced that construction has begun on the Breckenridge Riverwalk Center. This award winning amphitheater has been a community center for the Town of Breckenridge for over 15 years, and has hosted thousands of concerts and events. The $3 million, 11,000 square foot renovation will replace the existing fabric tent with a permanent shell structure. The addition of a roof covering and walls will significantly enhance the concert and event experience by improving acoustics, temperature control and lighting. It will also extend the facilities ability to host events and performances early and late in the season and is flexible enough to accommodate winter events. To sustain the connection the amphitheater has with the outside environment, six large clear doors will open to the Riverwalk Center Lawn. The negotiable CM/GC project is slated for completion in May of 2008. Harry Teague Architects of Aspen is the architect for the project.
